Introduction

Welcome to this three-day Bible study on worshiping God for His mercy, inspired by Psalm 100. This psalm serves as a powerful reminder of the joy, gratitude, and reverence we are called to offer our loving Creator, whose mercy endures forever.

Psalm 100 opens with an invitation to "shout for joy to the Lord, all the earth," calling everyone to celebrate the goodness of God. Behind these words lies an incredible truth: God welcomes us as His beloved people because of His steadfast mercy and faithfulness.

On these days, we will explore what it means to worship God by recognizing His mercy, rejoice in His loving presence, and respond with heartfelt gratitude and commitment. Worship is more than singing or rituals; it is a lifestyle that reflects awe for God's enduring kindness, even when we fall short.

As we study together, consider how God's mercy has touched your life personally. Use this time to deepen your appreciation for His grace and to renew your worship with authenticity and joy. Let Psalm 100 inspire you to approach God with gladness, truly acknowledging the depth of His love and mercy.

Prepare your heart to encounter God in fresh ways—ready to praise Him, to listen, and to be transformed by His mercy that lasts forever. May this study bring you closer to the heart of worship and fill you with thankful praise!

Devotional: Starting Worship with Joyful Praise

Starting with joy is essential in worshiping God for His mercy. Psalm 100:1 invites all the earth to shout for joy. This is not just a casual or quiet praise but an exuberant celebration of who God is and what He has done. It reminds us that worship begins with recognizing God's goodness and mercy in a way that stirs our hearts to gladness.

God's mercy is the foundation of our praise. Even when we fail or feel broken, He remains faithful and compassionate. His mercy gives us reason to rejoice because it means we are loved, forgiven, and accepted. This joy is a powerful response to knowing that God's love is unconditional and enduring.

How often do we start our worship with true joy, fully aware of who God is and what His mercy means for us? Today, let your heart shout for joy as a reflection of thankfulness for God's never-ending mercy. Worship is not just an action; it is a response from deeply grateful hearts.
